

Two Men Hurt When R. R. Car Hits Auto

Two employees of the Union Pacific railroad were injured about 5:45 p. m., Monday when the small motor car they were riding struck an automobile at a crossing in Echo. A third railroad employee escaped injury.

Most seriously injured was Clem Morris, who sustained a broken leg and arm and facial cuts and bruises. Nick de Paoli is reported to be suffering from a back injury. Parley Butters, third member of the party, escaped without injury in the crash. Mr. Morris and Mr. de Paoli are in an Ogden hospital.

A young man and a boy, whose names were not available, were reported to have been in the car. Their injuries, it is thought, were not serious. The vehicle is reportedly owned by Hatch Richins of Echo.

The railroad motor car was traveling east at the time of the crash, enroute to Evanston, Wyo., where the three men were to board a detector car for their return trip to Morgan.
